March 12, 1997

SUMMARY OF BILL: Creates administrative procedure for revocation of a driver's license when a person refuses to consent to a test for determining alcohol or drug content of the person's blood when requested by a law enforcement officer. Creates due process requirements for the Department of Safety to follow in revocation of a license including the right to an administrative hearing. Any person refusing the test will lose their driver's license for 12 months. The law would allow appeal of decisions to a court.
